REMEDY FOR SMALLPOX.—An effec-d remedy for smallpox is said to have en recently found by a surgeon of a British army in China. The mode treatment is as follows: When the ceding fever is at its height, and just fore the eruption appears, the chest is bbed with croton oil and tartaric iment. This causes the whole of ruption to appear on that part of body, to the relief of the rest. It o secures a full and complete eruption d thus prevents the disease from attacking the internal organs. This is w the established mode of treatment the English army in China, and is rearded as a perfect cure.

REV. W. B. JENNEY.
How He and His Church are Progressing.

The Hoboken, New Jersey, Evening News, of December 22d, contains the annexed interesting notes about Rev. W. B. Jenney, formerly of Reno, and his church and church work East. The News says:

Two very beautiful memorial windows have just been placed in St. Paul's Church, Hudson street, above eighth. One was given by Mrs. Robert Stobo, as a memorial to her late husband, who was Junior Warden and a lifelong friend of the parish. The other is the gift of Mr. Stobo's sister, Mrs. R. C. Veit.

The first represents the visit of the Saviour to the house of Mary and Martha. Jesus is represented as seated. Martha is standing before him, but with the appearance of being occupied with her household cares, while Mary sits low at his feet, regarding him intently.

The second represents the scene at the tomb after the resurrection of Christ. The Angel of the Resurrection is sitting on a rock by the open door of the sepulchre, which is empty. The two Marys are questioning him. One kneels at his feet, looking up; the other stands near by. The angel has one hand pointing into the tomb, while the other is pointed upward. It is the scene where he tells them: "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified. He is risen; He is not here."

The windows are real works of art. The figures are well drawn and natural. The coloring is very rich and handled with fine effect. They are a great addition to the church, and are windows of which any parish might be proud. They are of domestic design and manufacture, and as handsome and artistic as the imported work.

The rector of St. Paul's, Rev. Mr. Jenney, had the option of ordering them abroad and was advised to do so, but he told a News reporter he believed in patronizing home industry and art and assisting in developing home genius and talent. He had the windows made by J. & R. Lamb, of New York, and is more than satisfied with the result of his choice.

A few years ago such handsome windows would have been out of place in St. Paul's. At any rate they would have been impossibilities, for the church was poor and the interior cold and bar-ren looking. Now all this has changed.
Since Mr. Jenney became its rector he has infused new life into the parish, its progress and development have been wonderful.

Within the past eighteen months the interior of the church has undergone a transformation. It has been handsomer celled in black-walnut and southern pine, and newly frescoed throughout. A rectory has been built and completely furnished by members of the parish, and there have just been completed thirty-two new pews, for which there was ample room, and a handsome black-walnut vestibule with cathedral glass windows. What is better still, the church has not run into debt for these improvements. They are all paid for. The money was nearly all forthcoming in each case almost as soon as the need of it was made known.
The improvements in the interior of the church have cost $2,175.

Of course this means that the parish has been growing in every way. The need for the new pews testified to the increased attendance. Now all the old pews are rented and several of the new pews have been in demand for some time. They will be used the first time on Christmas Day. From being very poor the church is now in good financial circumstances. It receipts are considerably in excess of the expenses.

But the energetic rector will not rest on these fruits of his labors. He is determined to do all in his power to hasten the time when the church building shall be completed according to the original plans. He wants the older members who stood by St. Paul's through years of struggle to see the first design carried out. The western end of the building was only temporarily finished. While the rest of the edifice is of stone the western end is of wood. The church is to be extended in that direction twenty-five feet and a recess chancel and choir to be built. This will make the building 100x60 feet, the proportions of the design. Mr. Jenney has received such promises of aid as to encourage him in hoping to undertake this work in the near future.

The church is already beautifully dressed for the Christmas services and the Sunday School, numbering 350 scholars, is to have a seasonable festival on Christmas Eve.

For the term ending Dec. 23, 1887,
